Superior USDA Certified Organic & Wildcrafted Essential Oils

Essential oils are highly concentrated, so it's good to be sure that they are without impurities and pesticides. The best way to ensure essential oils are truly clean from toxic residues is to make sure they are USDA certified organic. If essential oils are not USDA certified organic or wildcrafted, then they are conventionally grown and are lower grade and not as clean. The toxic residues they contain from conventional farming and spraying will become concentrated through the distillation process and are found in nonorganic essential oils. Purify Skin Therapy carries only the highest grade USDA certified organic and/or wildcrafted essential oils to ensure you are getting only the cleanest essential oils possible.
